Subject: tax levy for floods
Date: Monday, 14 February 2011 12:40:46 PM

Dear people,

I would prefer that the Civil Defence budget for severe natural disturbances becomes part of the currently massive Defence budget. This is a far fairer and more appropriate way to ensure that all Australians take part in an educative process that prepares us all for future environmental upheavals to our lives and welfare. The Defence budget is already available while a tax levy is still being disputed and will cause unnecessary hostility amongst middle-level tax payers who already feel they support the nation with their taxes.

Respectfully,

Diana
