

Dear Senator or Senators.

I would like Miss Roxan's Human Rights and Anti Discrimination Bill not to be made valid as I believe certain rights would be violated.

Firstly human rights under the Freedom Of Speech Act.

Secondly the right of a person to own or have in their possession literature and or symbols signifying their beliefs.

Thirdly the degree of the offence can be taken to extremes so that the accused is unnecessarily prosecuted.

Fourthly there are sufficient laws to protect adults and children from discriminations.

Fifthly the Miss Roxan's Laws would be that binding almost all members of society would be living in fear of prosecution over the least thing.

Sixthly the Courts would be bound up with trifle and often unwarranted offences causing a backlog of demanding criminal cases.

Seventhly The 1901 Australian Constitution would be violated in parts particularly that of freedom of religion.

Regards

Mr. A. Wilkinson.
