

Even a small increase in the average temperature will have many negative implications for Australia: more extreme weather events, more fires, more crop failures.

But Australia is wealthy and can mitigate the effects of natural disasters. Not so many poor, low-lying countries.

Per capita, Australians are among the biggest producers of greenhouse gases. The results of our greed for cheap energy will hurt us, but it will hurt much more many populations who don't contribute much to greenhouse gas pollution.

Please let us be good world citizens, and do our bit towards saving the planet.

Thanks for your cooperation
Joe Wolfe