

Dear Ladies and Gentlemen, supporting wind power is following a totally erroneous path: wind farms destroy landscapes, make people sick, decrease their quality of life, do not make sense from an economical point (only a few get rich at the expense of the electricity consumer / loss of employment on account of relocation of industry caused by higher energy costs), devaluation of residents' real estate and property, wind farms are no alternative to currently available energy products as those cannot be relinquished and needed in addition to wind farms; moreover, many birds and bats are killed. I hope that the delusions concerning wind power will be stopped soon. With best regards from Germany, where one wind farm dictatorially follows another. Astrid Kaupert
