

To the committee, I am writing to lend my support to community wind farms. I live near Daylesford Victoria and am a member of the wind farm co-op. The construction of small wind electricity generating plants for local communities should be encouraged as they give people personal ownership of their electricity encouraging local involvement and responsibility.

As for any health issues, these would surely have been discovered by now in countries like Denmark where wind farms have been operating for many years.

Regards David Robertson.
