ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS ON NOTICE

New Zealand Treasury and New Zealand Overseas Investment Office

Foreign Acquisitions Amendment (Agricultural Land) Bill 2010

12 April 2011

Topic: Judicial reviews

Hansard page: E35, E37

Question:

Senator XENOPHON—If an application is rejected, it could be subject to judicial review. Is that right?

Ms McClure—Yes, that is correct.

Senator XENOPHON—And how often do you get judicial review applications against your decisions?

Ms McClure—Over the last five years we would have had probably three or four.

Senator XENOPHON—So it is pretty rare.

Ms McClure—Yes.

Senator XENOPHON—Could you, on notice, provide details to the secretariat of this committee of some of those rejections and the like?

Senator XENOPHON—You have had three or four judicial reviews in the last few years; is that right?

Ms McClure—That is correct.

Senator XENOPHON—What happened: were you upheld or were you knocked off?

Ms McClure—We were upheld in all cases.

Senator XENOPHON—That is not a bad strike rate. Could you give us some details of that? It is not as though you have changed the way you look at things as a result of judicial reviews saying you have done it wrong. In fact, you have been upheld.

Ms McClure—That is correct.

Senator XENOPHON—If you could take on notice to give us some more detail on those decisions, that would be useful.

Answer:

Attached are summaries of the judicial review cases. There are three cases that have been the subject of proceedings since 2005 (all related - initially heard in the High Court, appealed to the Court of Appeal, and then appealed to the Supreme Court). I have also attached summaries of two other proceedings (Talleys Fisheries v Cullen) and (Foodstuffs v Progressive Enterprises), both heard in 2002. I've included details of the costs proceedings for the latter cases as well as they provide additional insight into the context of the proceedings.

Please note that in all cases third parties (in the 2002 cases, competitors) have brought the proceedings. None of the proceedings relate to a decision that has been declined.

Case Summary - BriefCase

Civil procedure — Appeals — Leave to appeal — Supreme Court

Constitutional law — Official information — Requests for access

Unsuccessful application by J for leave to appeal Court of Appeal ('CA') decision upholding High Court ('HC') judgment dismissing his application for judicial review; J wrote letter to Overseas Investment Commission ('OIC') concerning Mr and Mrs Powell's ('Ps') purchase of property in NZ; Ps applied under Official Information Act 1982 for access to letter; OIC released letter to Ps; J applied to judicial review OIC's decision; J alleged OIC failed to monitor conditions on which Ps had been allowed to purchase property in NZ; J argued OIC erred in permitting access to letter; J submitted OIC breached confidence and effective conduct of public affairs; J argued OIC acted in contravention of s 27 New Zealand Bill of Rights Act 1990

Held, CA clearly correct to reject J's failure to monitor complaint; J's standing to seek judicial review not dealt with by CA; inappropriate for Court to give leave on that issue; J's complaints had been dealt with thoroughly by courts below; J's arguments on appeal untenable; leave refused; application declined

Constitutional law — Official information — Requests for access — Review of decisions

Unsuccessful appeal by J against High Court ('HC') decision dismissing his application for judicial review; in 1999 Powells ('Ps'), American citizens, applied for consent under Overseas Investment Act 1973 (OIA 1973) and Overseas Investment Regulations 1995 (OIR) to buy 2000 ha of land known as 'Waitai' on D'Urville Island in Marlborough Sounds; Waitai a farm running around 8900 stock units; Ps needed consent to buy Waitai because they were 'overseas persons' and Waitai was 'part of an island' for which consent was required; Overseas Investment Commission ('OIC') and relevant Ministers approved Ps application; in 2005 former Minister of Crown and barrister J became interested in whether Ps were adhering to obligations under OIC's consent; J previously acted for NZ company in legal dispute with Ps; J concerned OIC was not fulfilling its statutory monitoring obligations under OIA 1973; correspondence about the Ps between J, A-G, and OIC followed; Ps became aware they were subject of high level correspondence; Ps solicitors wrote to Overseas Investment Office ('OIO'), which had replaced OIC; Ps requested, under Official Information Act 1982 (OIA 1982) for all correspondence in OIO's possession concerning them; J objected to release of information; however OIO considered no ground existed to withhold release; J commenced judicial review proceedings; J challenged OIC's inaction in monitoring conditions to which OIC's consent was subject; J challenged OIO's intention to release requested information to Ps; OIO agreed not to release information pending determination of judicial review proceedings; HC heard J's application and dismissed his arguments; J argued (a) Ps breached continued obligations to establish high end international brand, (b) OIO incorrectly applied OIA 1982 when determining whether to release information to Ps' solicitors, and (c) OIO breached J's rights under s 27 New Zealand Bill of Rights Act 1990 (NZBORA), acted unfairly to him, and failed to provide adequate reasons for its decision

Held, HC correct to find all standard condition required was that the land was acquired and transferred within a year of consent date, which Ps fulfilled; OIC consent not necessary to develop high end brand; OIC no longer required to monitor Ps; therefore Ps did not breach any continuing obligations under OIA 1973; OIO made no error of law when it applied OIA 1982; Ps did not breach conditions of their consent and thus did not breach the law; releasing information did not prejudice the maintenance of the law; J feared reprisal from Ps if they discovered what J had written about them; fact J might end up sued by Ps irrelevant under OIA 1982; OIO complied with Ombudsmen's editorial and consulted with J before determining whether to release information to Ps; OIO acted fairly towards J and did not breach his rights under NZBORA; appeal dismissed

Case Summary - BriefCase

Administrative law — Judicial review — Evidence

Constitutional law — Official information — Requests for access — Review of decisions

Unsuccessful application by J for judicial review of several Overseas Investment Commission ('OIC') and Overseas Investment Office ('OIO') decisions; OIO successor of OIC; decisions related to approvals granted to American couple ('Ps') to buy land in Marlborough Sounds; J became involved, as counsel, in litigation against Ps; J objected to OIC and OIO decisions for several reasons, namely that decisions (a) failed to take certain relevant matters into account, (b) were unreasonable, (c) made for improper purpose, and (d) made acting under dictation and breached legitimate expectations; OIC and OIO maintained stringent criteria adhered to when processing applications from overseas land investors, namely that purchaser (a) of good character, (b) had business experience and acumen, (c) was financially committed to proposed investment and, (d) made investment to be beneficial to New Zealand, in cases of sensitive land

Held, J had no standing to bring judicial review proceedings; Ps OIC consent and continued monitoring raises no broad policy issues; J did not have sufficient cause to be interested in proceedings and claim was based on opinion that OIC and OIO should have treated case differently; application declined

Administrative law — Judicial reviewPrimary industries — Fisheries — Licences and quota — Allocation

Unsuccessful claim by TFL; a fishing quota was registered in the name of Ceebay Holdings Ltd ('CHL'); CHL's shareholders were Marhua (NZ) Incorporated Ltd ('MIL') and Amaltal Corporation Ltd ('ACL'); MIL was wholly owned by Marhua Corporation of Japan; and ACL was owned equally by TFL and Amalgamated Corporation Ltd; TFL brought a claim challenging decisions made by the Overseas Investment Commission and C variously granting CHL and MIL to hold and lease fishing quota; it contended that these decisions were ultra vires and should be quashed; and that the permissions in principle were not authorised by Fisheries Act 1996 FA since the decision failed to have regard to and apply the 'NZ-isation' policy of FA

Held, TFL's submissions are inadequate; TFL could have legitimately complained if a perceived disadvantage to it had influenced C's decision; the quota was validly granted to CHL and through a valid application process; accordingly TFL's various grounds for review are rejected; claim is dismissed

Civil procedure — Costs — Assessment — Discontinued proceedings

Company law — Corporate finance — Shares

Successful claim for costs for discontinued proceedings; FS applied for judicial review of OIC decision to allow purchase of shares in their company by PE; FS and PE came to commercial settlement, however, outstanding allegations against OIC were not withdrawn; FS acknowledged liability for costs on discontinuance of proceedings, but did not accept quantum claimed by OIC; OIC submitted indemnity costs should be awarded, or alternatively costs should be awarded with appropriate increases to reflect circumstances of proceedings; OIC claimed FS made allegations of bad faith tantamount to fraud without adequate evidential substance; AG sought indemnity costs with appropriate increases to reflect circumstances of proceedings on grounds allegations against responsible Ministers were devoid of merit; FS argued indemnity costs were inappropriate as proceedings were brought to challenge decision wrongly made

Held, Court exercises discretion under r 46 High Court Rules taking into account plaintiff who discontinues proceedings ordinarily must pay costs; it was improper to continue proceedings after completion of inspection process; it is inappropriate for public body to be required to meet costs of this magnitude when public law remedies have been invoked in an endeavour to gain commercial advantage; it is inappropriate to identify costs as indemnity costs, instead correct approach is to assess global amount for costs and disbursements having regard to knowledge of proceedings; OIC is awarded costs in amount of $75,000; responsible Ministers are awarded costs in amount of $45,000; application granted

Civil procedure — Application — Review

Commercial law — Competition (see Trade practices - Competition)

Unsuccessful application by F for interim orders under s 8 of the Judicature Amendment Act 1972 ('the Act'); orders were to prohibit first and second defendants, 'P' and 'FA', from taking any action to acquire shares in Woolworths (New Zealand) Ltd ('Woolworths') from third and fourth defendants, 'DC' and 'DF'; this was pending further order of the Court and determination of F's application for judicial review; May 2001 P applied for clearance from Commerce Commission ('the Commission') to acquire Woolworths; July 2001 clearance granted by the Commission under the test for application relevant before amendments were made to the Commerce Act 1986 ('CA'); the decision to give clearance was found invalid on appeal; in the meantime the Government introduced an Act which validated the 11 clearances affected by the appeal; acknowledged it was not the intention of CA's amendments to apply the new test to applications filed before the amendments came into force; P and FA therefore successful on appeal; May 2002 FA lodged application with OIC outlining the proposed investment to be undertaken; OIC granted the application; F was oblivious to steps taken by FA to seek appropriate consent under the Overseas Investment Act 1973 ('OIA'); it wanted to be heard before any final decision but was told a final decision on consent had already been made; F sought judicial review of the decision under the OIA; F contended the Minister's decision under the OIA was unlawful and therefore review necessary under s 8 of the Act.

Case Summary - BriefCase

Civil procedure — Costs — AmountMaori affairs — Fisheries — Quotas

Judgment as to costs in relation to a unsuccessful application by T for judicial review of the decisions made by the Overseas Investment Commission ('OIC') and the Ministry of Fisheries ('MoF') in granting Maruha Incorporated Ltd ('MIL') to hold fishing quota; T submitted that in public interest litigation costs should not be so punitive as to discourage litigation; T further submitted that MIL should not be entitled to costs because it joined the proceedings of its own volition and used the proceedings to assist it in subsequent litigation; T also submitted that the MIL's costs on discovery were improper and should not be awarded; C submitted that T's claim was commercially motivated and that costs should be approached on this basis; OIC and MIL submitted that costs should be awarded beyond scale 3C.

Held, the litigation was not in the category of public interest; the joinder of MIL was proper and fair and MIL should be awarded costs; C and MoF are entitled to the whole of their costs; OIC is entitled to an increase in scale costs; MIL had a lesser direct burden than the other defendants and costs should reflect this position; orders accordingly
