

Dear Committee Delegates,
my daughter suffers from M.S and at this stage she receives no relief from current orthodox pain relief medication.

During the night she has much neurological pain manifesting itself in very sharp pins and needles and heat in her legs, which prevents her from having a normal night's sleep.

The efficacy of the strain/type / method of administration of medicinal cannabis, has shown to give analgesic, anti-inflammatory and anti-insomnia, antispasmodic and immunosuppressive relief.

As my daughter's M.S progresses, she has become more anxious and depressed and really can't see a future ahead of her. She is thirty-seven and has had M.S. for sixteen years.

On behalf of her livelihood and thousands of others, please compassionately consider this submission

Regards

Rose Breen
