

Future generations will judge us for how we act now, now when we have a chance to make a difference. We must act now to implement long term policy changes that reduce our dependence on the carbon economy.

Yes climate change is a natural process but this fact is being used by those who are most exploiting our natural heritage for their personal financial gain and wish to perpetuate the system that allows this exploitation to continue.

The science is clear that human activity is adversely impacting on the health of our planet's natural systems, time is running out, no more excuses, we have to act decisively.

Please help to make changes now that will make a major difference to the future.

Richard Winkler