Melbourne businesses sharing views on exports to the Middle East

The opportunities and challenges of trading with the Middle East will be explored at a public hearing in Melbourne on Friday 17 October.

The hearing is part of the Trade sub-committee of the Joint Standing Committee on Foreign Affairs, Defence and Trade's inquiry into Australia's trade and investment relationships with the Middle East.

Representatives from a diverse range of Victorian businesses, universities, the dairy industry and also the Victorian Government will share their experiences of trade between Australia and the Middle East to date, and suggest ways to bolster trade and investment.

The sub-committee will hear from Ego Pharmaceuticals, which exports skincare products from Victoria throughout the Middle East and has 54 staff in the region.

Also appearing are engineering firms such as the Australian Turntable Company based in Bendigo that design, build and export a range of truck and restaurant turntables to countries such as the United Arab Emirates, Iran and Iraq. It recently installed a turntable with a 50m diameter in the world's largest revolving restaurant in the Milad Tower in Tehran.

The Trade Commissioner for Victoria to the Middle East, Africa and Turkey will also appear alongside other Victorian government officials to discuss how the last three state government sponsored Super Trade Missions to the Middle East have helped generate more than $550 million in export sales to the region.

Mainstream Aquaculture will also explain to federal MPs and senators how thousands of Australian barramundi fingerlings bred at its Werribee hatchery are also destined for the dinner plates of Saudi Arabia.
