

ANOTHER INQUIRY COULD WANDER INTO THE SAME MEMORY HOLE ALL THESE HAVE

http://www.humanrights.gov.au/human_rights/immigration/seas.html

http://www.humanrights.gov.au/human_rights/immigration/index.html

<http://www.aph.gov.au/house/committee/mig/reports.htm>

http://www.aph.gov.au/senate/committee/legcon_ctte/completed_inquiries/2004-07/migration/index.htm

<http://sievx.com/>

http://www.abc.net.au/4corners/content/2003/20030519_woomera/default.htm

http://www.abc.net.au/4corners/archives/2000a_Monday13March2000.htm

http://www.abc.net.au/4corners/archives/2001b_Monday13August2001.htm

http://www.abc.net.au/4corners/archives/2002a_Monday15April2002.htm

<http://www.abc.net.au/4corners/content/2008/s2362098.htm>

Borderline by Peter Mares - 2001

Dark Victory - David Marr and Marian Wilkinson 2002

Bitter Shores - Jacquie Everett

Asylum Seekers - Don McMasters

Blind Conscience - Margot O'Neill

Human rights overboard - Linda Briskman

Pacific Solution - Susan Metcalfe

Freeing Ali - Michael Gordon

Following them Home - David Corlett

Acting from the Heart - Sarah Mares

Desert Sorrow - Tom Mann

Dark Dreams - young writers

Lives in Limbo - Michael Leach and Fethi Mansouri

A Certain Maritime Incident - Tony Kevin

No Place like Home - young writers

Another Country - Rosie Scott

Nothing to Zero - ed. Julian Burnside

Not once has any member of parliament defined where in the refugee convention drafting or final treaty it says "Australia alone in the world can jail people for life if they want to because we are special".

Article 31 forbids punishment.

Attached are DIACS own documents and a short break down of the level of crude racism and discrimination applied by the DIC's regarding those who dare to arrive by sea.

Also attached the graphs my data were extrapolated from and the danger of allowing DIAC to operate outside the law.

The refugee convention is a legally binding humanitarian treaty, when did Australia turn it into a border security issue and where does the refugee convention turn on defending our borders from refugees seeking our help.