IMMIGRATION DETENTION NETWORK

Q143

Question: When that someone comes down off the roof, what is the consequence of having done something like that or engaged in disruptive activity within the centre? More broadly, if they engage in other activity which is disruptive and potentially aggressive and against what I hope would be a code of behaviour in the centre, what would be the consequence?

Answer: Apart from the security of the facility the primary focus is the well-being and the welfare of the individual concerned. When a person ceases a rooftop protest they are seen by Detention Health Service Provider, IHMS as soon as practicable and the client's physical and mental health is assessed. Serco, IHMS and DIAC officers will determine the most suitable placement option for the client based on health and risk assessments. At an appropriate time Serco will discuss with the client the code of conduct and may develop a Behaviour Management Plan, which may include limited access to activities and amenities.
