

From:
Mr Bruce Crothers

I have seen and been informed about experiences of League tables used overseas. Teaching the subject is secondary as long as they get good results in NAPLAN type tests. The information is handy for schools but very damaging if misused. Why do we follow the UK and US when our graduates are snapped up by employers from there because our students actually know something. We are more spread out with a lower population so 'choice' = $