

I am a current user of cannabis for medical conditions such as insomnia, stress, anxiety and depression.

The problem with medications that I have used in the past for years that they make me more depressed and drowsy, there was almost little to no relief with them, then I tried cannabis, it was perfect on all aspects except that it is illegal and I do not know what I am getting since I have to resort to buying 'street cannabis' that may not always be good medication.

I just don't want to feel guilty anymore that I am doing something wrong by medicating myself and making my life bearable. Cannabis has changed my life and made me feel finally normal.

Please consider the people who are mentally and physically ill.
