Overall, across the sector, there is considerable additional capacity. As at June 2013, there were 78,000 vacancies in long day care centres, with 89% of centres reporting vacancies. The average number of vacancies per centre rose form 14.73 in June 2012 to 17.5 in June 2013, over and above the 6.1% increase in overall enrolments.

Data extracted from ACECQA's National Register suggests that there were even more new centres opening in 2013-14. The National Register records from 1/4/2013 to 31/3/2014 show:

New services in the year to 1/4/2014:

LDC 342 services; 20.183 places

FDC 315 services; 1,260 places

OSH: 1087 services; 65,316 places

TOTAL: 1,745 services; 86,684 places

The 20,1~~08~~183 new places in long day care and preschools represents an increase of around 4%, which is more than twice the population growth of 0-4 year olds in Australia.

However, places tend to be disproportionately located in higher income areas. Of the new places, over a third (7211 places) were in suburbs in the top 20% of the SEIFA rankings, while less than 1 in 7 (2807 places) were in suburbs in the bottom 20% of SEIFA rankings. New child care places were 2.6 times more likely to be created in high income suburbs than low income suburbs.

New centres approved 1/4/2013 – 31/3/2014:

SEIFA quintile	Places	No. NFP centres	No. For profit centres
Bottom 20%	2807	47	22

Third 20%	4657	35	37
Fourth 20%	3448	27	24
