To whom it may concern,
I have great concerns for the adverse health effects for people living close to wind farms as I know many in Portland who are suffering many different health problems due to the vibrations and noises emitted by the towers/blades
Also being a property owner with 2 houses in south Portland my concerns of the fact more towers are going to be erected too close to dwellings and many of young families - healthy at present are probably going to end up sick and distressed like so many others are.
I know of many, many reports of illnesses up in Ballarat due to the wind towers up there.

I had a psych. nurse from Ballarat visit and stay here in December last year and she is horrified at how many people are unwell, she totally believes due to the wind towers, not only physically sick but because of the terrible physical ailments & effects of the towers it is effecting their emotional

~~wellbeing~~ ~~and~~ ~~mental~~ ~~states~~ ~~also~~ - we have enough mental problems already in our communities without adding to it or them overseas I believe there are restrictions on how close to human dwellings these towers can be? over 2 to 3 kilometers I believe and why are they just allowed to dot these anywhere and everywhere?

Many people do have a great deal of evidence that the towers do have a detrimental effect on people and animals health - to me it makes sense too - Please do something about it
