

The My School Website in its current form is being used by the media to damage schools by creating league tables.

This practise should be prevented.

The shame and blame game does nothing for the schools performing poorly. Instead they should be assisted to improve by whatever means.

Our government needs to stand up for public schools. Only when it does this can they be the benchmark for all. Public schools have 2/3 of the students, let's support and strengthen them rather than allow them to be undermined and weakened.
