

Climate change is killing this planet. We only get one planet. Species are becoming extinct, polar ice caps are melting (gee polar bears must love that), the weather is so hot during summer its killing people and animals. I have livestock, I don't want them to burn in one of our horrible summer fire storms.

And what about the future eh? What, we don't do anything about this man made problem, just leave it? Great, generations to come will be having a great time, I'm sure they'll be very grateful for the effort we made.

Leaders have to now lead on this issue, get some nuts and actually do something however distasteful some of the electorate may find it. They'll come around. As soon as it starts impacting on them, they'll come around, you know that.

Please, let's lead on this issue. Its time.
