

I am really, really concerned about the increasing risk of fires / floods etc in Australia and I am convinced that it is due to climate change. I would like to see the government take this matter very seriously. I want the government to provide heaps more money and resources to the fire fighters, the SES, and the Red Cross etc and all those people who look after innocent people, animals and the environment that are caught up in these disasters. They are the real heroes. I really resent that politicians ALL vote to put up their salaries, it is obscene. Money should be going to these helpers instead.
