

Gallery applauds wind knockback

Thunderous applause echoed throughout the Buffalo Hall last week, when South Gippsland Council voted to reject two wind monitoring tower applications in the Corner Inlet area.

Plea for halt to wind farms

Three Coast Guardians and wind farm activists from 4000, gathered with the council last week to plead for a halt to wind farm applications in the area.

The 4000 address the council during previous times, saying enough was enough, and it was time to stop the wind farms. The council has not yet made a decision on the applications, but the activists are confident it will be a "no" decision.

"We should be in South Gippsland here to discuss the future of the area, not the power generation, which is primarily used to generate electricity," said one of the activists.

"We are in favour of the wind farms," said another activist.

The 4000 believed wind monitoring towers would be a good idea, but they were not in favour of the wind farms.

The 4000 believed that wind power companies were trying to force a market on the area, and they were not in favour of that.

The 4000 concluded by saying that the council should not be a "no" decision on the wind farm applications.

"Council has to please local wind farm, but the community will have a say in the future," said one of the activists.

By Kate de Borch

Casting vote scuttles plan

Two power generation towers were rejected by South Gippsland Council last week.

The council has not yet made a decision on the applications, but the activists are confident it will be a "no" decision.

"We should be in South Gippsland here to discuss the future of the area, not the power generation, which is primarily used to generate electricity," said one of the activists.

"We are in favour of the wind farms," said another activist.

The 4000 believed that wind power companies were trying to force a market on the area, and they were not in favour of that.

The 4000 concluded by saying that the council should not be a "no" decision on the wind farm applications.

"Council has to please local wind farm, but the community will have a say in the future," said one of the activists.

The 4000 believed that wind power companies were trying to force a market on the area, and they were not in favour of that.

The 4000 concluded by saying that the council should not be a "no" decision on the wind farm applications.

Crafts on display

Local crafters were busy at the corner of Buffalo Hall last week, and a display of their work was on show.

The display was part of a series of events to celebrate the 4000th anniversary of the area.

The display was part of a series of events to celebrate the 4000th anniversary of the area.

The display was part of a series of events to celebrate the 4000th anniversary of the area.

The display was part of a series of events to celebrate the 4000th anniversary of the area.

The display was part of a series of events to celebrate the 4000th anniversary of the area.

The display was part of a series of events to celebrate the 4000th anniversary of the area.

The display was part of a series of events to celebrate the 4000th anniversary of the area.

The display was part of a series of events to celebrate the 4000th anniversary of the area.

The display was part of a series of events to celebrate the 4000th anniversary of the area.

The display was part of a series of events to celebrate the 4000th anniversary of the area.

The display was part of a series of events to celebrate the 4000th anniversary of the area.

The display was part of a series of events to celebrate the 4000th anniversary of the area.

The display was part of a series of events to celebrate the 4000th anniversary of the area.

The display was part of a series of events to celebrate the 4000th anniversary of the area.

The display was part of a series of events to celebrate the 4000th anniversary of the area.

The display was part of a series of events to celebrate the 4000th anniversary of the area.

The display was part of a series of events to celebrate the 4000th anniversary of the area.

The display was part of a series of events to celebrate the 4000th anniversary of the area.

The display was part of a series of events to celebrate the 4000th anniversary of the area.

The display was part of a series of events to celebrate the 4000th anniversary of the area.

The display was part of a series of events to celebrate the 4000th anniversary of the area.

The display was part of a series of events to celebrate the 4000th anniversary of the area.

The display was part of a series of events to celebrate the 4000th anniversary of the area.

The display was part of a series of events to celebrate the 4000th anniversary of the area.

The display was part of a series of events to celebrate the 4000th anniversary of the area.

The display was part of a series of events to celebrate the 4000th anniversary of the area.

The display was part of a series of events to celebrate the 4000th anniversary of the area.

The display was part of a series of events to celebrate the 4000th anniversary of the area.

The display was part of a series of events to celebrate the 4000th anniversary of the area.

The display was part of a series of events to celebrate the 4000th anniversary of the area.

The display was part of a series of events to celebrate the 4000th anniversary of the area.

The display was part of a series of events to celebrate the 4000th anniversary of the area.

The display was part of a series of events to celebrate the 4000th anniversary of the area.

The display was part of a series of events to celebrate the 4000th anniversary of the area.

The display was part of a series of events to celebrate the 4000th anniversary of the area.

The display was part of a series of events to celebrate the 4000th anniversary of the area.

The MIRROR

Reflecting Upon Local News

Inside ⇌⇌

- Police want information on speeding driver, page 3
- Had You's next stage to begin at Foster, page 7

• Foster • Terna • Fish Creek • Wafkapool

Phone: 03 5222 1111, Fax: 03 5222 1111, Email: info@themirror.com.au, Website: www.themirror.com.au

Shire refuses wind monitor applications

South Gippsland Shire Council has refused two applications for wind monitoring towers in the Corner Inlet area. The council's decision was made after a public consultation process, which included a public meeting and a survey of local residents. The council is confident that its decision is in the best interests of the community.

The council's decision was made after a public consultation process, which included a public meeting and a survey of local residents. The council is confident that its decision is in the best interests of the community.

A large rock formation in the Corner Inlet area, which is the subject of the wind farm applications.

