

My concern is for water in a future which may see increased droughts, heatwaves and fires and more difficulty in growing food. I would like you to consider the impact of the mining industry, in particular Coal Seam Gas Exploration and Mining, and the huge amount of water that it uses as well as the contamination of aquifers and above ground water sources. We're going to need that water now and in the future and we just have to stop the countless megalitres that this industry, which is making the global climate worse, is squandering and contaminating.

Jack Claff