

Dear Madam/Sir,

It has been brought to my attention that a set of amendments has been brought before parliament concerning Environmental legislation. We do not want to make it easier for developers to operate. If anything we need even more stringent requirements to halt the incredible degradation developers cause in fragile environments. There should be no softening up of legislation involving threatened species or habitats. What new environmental legislation must address is global warming and reduction of greenhouse gas by all of us. Our current civilisation will not see us out if we don't address this issue now.

Yours faithfully,
Liz Riley
