

Submission on the EPBC, Amendment Bill October 2006

Why is it necessary to speed up the evaluation of the environmental impacts of a development?

If the real reason is not to make the process less rigorous, the only other reason is to allow money to be made faster - greed. Any civilised society should take great care before destroying anything unique and irreplaceable.

Please do not allow hastily assessed developments to dispossess our children and all future generations of Australia's natural heritage. The EPBC Act is already ineffective enough. Extinction is forever.

Mark Purcell