Notice of Motion

Senators Rice and Pratt

I give notice that on the next day of sitting I shall move that the Senate –

1. Notes that:

- a. November 15 marks the one year anniversary of the announcement of the resounding yes vote in the marriage laws postal survey;
- b. This resounding yes vote is something to be celebrated, as is the passing of marriage equality in Australia;
- c. The postal survey in itself is not to be celebrated, as it was opposed by the majority of LGBTIQ+ Australians and caused a lot of harm to LGBTIQ+ Australians and their families;
- d. The historic yes vote and the passing of marriage equality was the result of decades of tireless campaigning by brave community leaders and activists; and
- e. Marriage equality is not the end of the fight for equality for LGBTIQ+ Australians and their families, many of whom still face discrimination in their daily lives.

2. Calls on all Parliamentarians to:

- a. Continue to work to end discrimination against LGBTIQ+ Australians and their families in all areas of their lives.

NOTICE OF MOTION

I give notice that on the next day of sitting I will move that the Senate-

1. Notes that –
 - a. Multiple Australian Islamic Terrorists, including the Bourke Street terrorist, ISIS suicide bombers and would-be domestic terrorists, have links to the Hume Islamic Youth Centre;
 - b. ABC's 4 Corners journalist and executive producer Sally Neighbour, writing for The Australian in 2006, states that Hume Islamic Youth Centre Emir Mohammed Omran is a leader of:

"...the fundamentalist Ahlus Sunnah Wal Jamaah Association - now regarded as the most radical Islamic group in Australia"
 - c. In the 2006 article, which reported on a meeting between Mohammed Omran and Abu Bakar Bashir, head of the terrorist group Jemaah Islamiah, which was responsible for the 2002 Bali Bombings, Neighbour describes Omran as:

"...well-connected in international Salafist circles. A Jordanian-born migrant to Australia, his friends included the British-based al-Qa'ida luminary Abu Qatada, whom Omran hosted in Australia in 1994. Interviews with Osama bin Laden and Abu Qatada were among the items featured in the online magazine Nida'ul Islam (Call to Islam), published by Omran's acolytes in the Islamic Youth Movement and read widely in Australia."
 - d. Despite repeated cases of radicalised Islamists attending the Hume Islamic Youth Centre, Omran this week criticised calls for imams to increase actions to combat extremism – with counterclaims that his greatest power was only to call Triple 0 when confronted with a threat - and instead accused Australia's police and security agencies of complacency over the movements of the Bourke Street Islamic terrorist;
 - e. Omran, who is regarded as arguably Australia's most senior Salafist cleric, would face significant punishment and hardship if he was to make comparable criticism of Jordanian security agencies, where it is a criminal offence to criticise the king and government officials.
2. Calls on the Senate to:
 - a. Condemn radical Islam, whether in speech or deed;
 - b. Call on the Islamic community in Australia to continue to condemn radical Islam in speech and deed and reaffirm its commitment to working alongside Australian security agencies to address radicalisation in all its forms;
 - c. Call on Mohammed Omran to publically retract his criticism of police and intelligence services and denounce all radical Islamic speech and jihadism.

I give notice that on the next day of sitting, I will move that the Senate:

(a) Notes that:

- (i) Australia's Fire and Emergency (F&E) personnel have a long and proud record of serving overseas, assisting local efforts during times of need;
- (ii) This service has included 17 deployments over the course of 20 years; most recently, a contingent of 140 service men and women who fought deadly fires in California in September this year;
- (iii) Currently, within Australia's honours system, there are specific honours for police, military personnel and humanitarian groups that provide emergency assistance overseas, but not one specifically designated for F&E personnel;
- (iv) This has had the effect of forcing F&E personnel to apply for recognition for their service under the Humanitarian Overseas Service Medal (HOSM) – an honour intended for humanitarian groups; and
- (v) F&E personnel are entitled to have their service recognised with a medal struck especially for them.

- (b) Calls on the government to create a new Fire and Emergency Service Overseas Medal to recognise F&E personnel who serve overseas during times of crisis.
