Senator Payne asked:

I have two quick questions to follow up on question 30. When do you expect to finalise the implementation of that improved locational data collection, and is it data that will be publicly released when it is finalised.

Answer:

The Department is still working to improve the quality of the data to ensure its accuracy across spatial boundaries. Further work on the quality of data needs to occur before the data would be suitable for publication.

The Department hopes to have this data available in 2011.
