

5 April 2013

I make my submission as an ordinary citizen very concerned that the natural values of this country are already seriously degraded as a result of various forms of human development. Even if we now make strenuous efforts to restore them to something like their pristine state, success may be out of reach. It's therefore of extreme importance that any activity that might further exacerbate this situation be prevented. Our children and grandchildren will have good reason to condemn our generation if we fail to meet this challenge.

Kind regards
Robert Byrnes