

Windfarms are one of the main contributors towards alternative energy provision. We need to step up their use.

They are all over Germany – I have been among them in my husbands former hometown in Langenberg on small farms and on hilltops, causing no detriment re sound ,they are visual as in fact they have a ‘form follows function aesthetic’ , more prepossessing than many other ugly developments we have all over our farm landscapes and coastal environs. We are long overdue to get with it. We have them near Hume H/way in NSW, hillsides in North Island NEW Zealand for years and years, and countless other more contemporary thinking lands – we are all familiar with those in the sea off Denmark.

Sincerely, Elizabeth Grieb.
