

Hi

Sir/madam

First of all i am not really happy about these changes in migration so quick, as far as i know Australia is really good country, people are here so nice, I been here since 2007, everything was going all right but suddenly I got shocked when i heard about this bill. Which is total unfair for those who has already lodged their application regarding to Pr. for example when u lodge your application and you meet all the requirements that means you should get that visa which you are applying for . In addition now they saying they want to cap those visa and stuff, so my question is that why they used to say if u meet those requirements u can get the visa. But when we meet the entire requirement we lodged the application now they are going to cap. You tell me how much fare it is. Think about it and come on to my situation and then what will you say it is fare...further more on one will be come here, because everyone wants their future bright so why anyone will pay shit load of money for nothing .if this bill will pass it means Australia will lose shit load of money which is come from international student. so need to so many times what will happen to the Australian economy. And sorry if i use any bad words.
