

One would have thought that after years of abusing aborigines in as many ways as one can think of, you would now allow Aboriginal elders many of whom are well up to the mark of leadership, to come forward. Mining the whole country may suit a few individuals however there are many who seek a more diverse future and to protect their country from exploitation. Please consider Australia's future. Work with our oldest inhabitants and no more intervention.

Liz Thornton.