Questions on notice: inquiry into the national trend of school refusal and related matters

Introduction

Catholic Education South Australia (CESA) meets all reporting requirements including those of reporting chronic and habitual absences to the Department for Education (DfE).

Individual schools, in partnership with their School Performance Leader (SPL) or Learning, Diversity and Wellbeing Advisor work on an individual basis with students and families on attendance and engagement matters, particularly chronic absenteeism.

An increasingly strategic and intentional approach has been acknowledged as necessary across CESA, and through the Catholic Education Office (CEO), in relation to the analysis of attendance data.

The development of the 'Student Dashboard' described below has been an initial focus and allows for greater analysis of attendance and academic data trends, as well as informed processes towards preventative and interventional models relating to school attendance and absences.

1. Please provide attendance data by year level

- Do you collect data on reasons for absenteeism?
 - If so, please provide the categories you collect data against
 - Please provide the absenteeism data by year level and by category you collect this data under.

Attached are several attendance and absentee reports generated by Diocesan schools and available to the Catholic Education Office (CEO) including:

- 1) Attendance types
- 2) Diocesan school attendance
- 3) Diocesan school 'Habitual Absence'
- 4) Diocesan school 'Chronic Absence'
- 5) Diocesan school chronic and habitual absence detail example and definition
- 6) Diocesan school unexplained absence
- 7) Education and Child Services Act extracts

2. What is your attendance target level for students? Is this consistent across all year groups?

- If this varies by year level, please provide the target for each year level.

School attendance rates are available to schools through detailed attendance reports, with individual schools setting their own growth targets and strategies. Catholic Education South Australia (CESA) does not have endorsed or published system, school or student attendance targets. School attendance rates are also publicly available on the My School website.

3. Have you done any analysis work on the linkage between student attendance and student academic performance?

The Catholic Education Office have recently developed a 'student dashboard' that collects both student attendance data, as well as a range of academic and wellbeing data. This provides the opportunity for both system and school analysis of the linkage between attendance and academic performance. Whilst this is currently a manual process undertaken as deemed necessary by individual schools, it is planned to be a wider system strategic undertaking.

4. How much of a gap are we seeing between the academic outcomes of children engaged in school refusal, and other students?

Initial data analysis shows a correlation between academic outcomes and school refusal, though there are difficulties in clearly defining the size of the gap. This is in part due to a lack of comparative assessment data, due to a large variance in assessment tasks undertaken. Data analysis processes are being developed to provide increasingly meaningful and informed data.

5. How many children are enrolled in a form of education, other than mainstream school, including:

- Home School
- Virtual School
- Distance Education
- Other (please define categories).
 - Please provide student data against each category.

The Department for Education (DfE) has provided the following high level data for students who were at a CESA school, but now enrolled in 'Home Education' (2022):

Previous Catholic School, now enrolled in Home Education
Age	Number of students
7	10
8	11
9	14
10	19
11	10
12	10
13	11
Total	111

CESA have also established several alternate schooling models, including Compass Catholic Community, FAME and Edmund Rice Flexi that enrol students who were previously disengaged from mainstream schooling. Enrolment is now over 100 students at each of these. Success and achievement levels are generally determined differently to mainstream schools, however, we are seeing promising outcomes, particularly in areas such as re-engagement in schooling and attainment of VET qualifications.

6. Is data collected on the reason a student is not attending mainstream school and why an exemption has been provided?

- Please provide data by category of exemption for how many students are enrolled in alternative methods of schooling.

Most commonly, exemption applications provide a reason (from the school), but it is sometimes a generic explanation that school/student are not a good fit, but rarely “school refusal”.

Formal exemptions are more likely for reasons of:

- Full time employment
- Full time apprenticeship or traineeship
- Full time other approved study (eg full time TAFE SA)

Other reasons for exemptions sometimes include reasons of disability (mostly anxiety/ASD) and might request a reduced timetable/attendance at school. An exemption to home school might also be connected to complex behaviour issues. There does appear to be an increasing number of families requesting a modified/part-time table, which can be a sensible short-term adjustment, however attendance must be reviewed and a clear plan implemented increase engagement over time.

7. Is data collected on student academic performance for students enrolled in alternative forms of schooling (as above).

Clear attendance and academic data are available for those students at Compass, FAME and Flexi schools, though data for Home Education/Schooling is not currently identified for analysis.

8. Do schools with higher rates of school refusal also have poorer academic performance among the rest of the student body?

Initial data analysis suggests that there is a correlation, though this also has some identifiable socio-economic and family background connections.

9. What is the academic performance like of schools that are specifically geared towards reaching students who engage in school refusal? (e.g. Virtual Schools Victoria is one such school the committee is aware of)

This is an identified area for increased strategic focus across CESA.

10. What academic outcomes do we see among students who have previously engaged in school refusal, but have since returned to school?

As suggested previously, our best system data relates to non-mainstream schools, where we can identify pleasing outcomes, particularly in areas such as re-engagement in schooling and attainment of VET qualifications.

11. What data is there on the effect of school refusal on students' employment opportunities later in life?

Exit and longitudinal data is an emerging commodity across the system, and it is hoped this will provide a greater insight over time. Current data relates more to SACE and VET achievement, which indicates school absences decrease the likelihood of success attainment of qualifications and could correspond to decreased employment opportunities.

12. What work has been done to understand the complex factors that influence student absenteeism?

All schools have a school attendance policy and procedure. In case where students are regularly absent, counsellors and senior staff attempt to work with the family and student to identify the causes of the absenteeism and potential intervention.

13. What policies do you have that support students and their families re-engage in school when experiencing school refusal?

We have a reporting obligation to the State Government when absenteeism reaches a particular level. We have a wellbeing responsibility to each student and their family which requires us to address issues and concerns in such a way to enable a student to return to school.

14. Has any work been done to identify students who may be at risk of school refusal?

- What intervention strategies are in place to support these students and families?

Our newly designed student dashboard allows monitoring of individual cases at school and system level and is beginning to provide insights into potential patterns of attendance or achievement that may lead to school refusal.

Chronic and Habitual Absenteeism Report is an interactive and visual reporting tool that allows for easier interpretation and management of attendance, particularly for students who miss at least 5 school days per term.

Purpose

1. Enables users to better understand and manage their performance through insightful visual representations that summarise large amounts of complex data and make it easier to determine appropriate action.
2. Enhances transparency and productivity by providing consistent and timely reporting (updated daily) without the need to spend considerable efforts to come up and validate reports every time.

About the Data

"Habitual" absences where student is absent for 5-9 days in one term for any reason

"Chronic" absences where student is absent for 10 or more days in one term for any reason

"Unexplained" absences for 10 or more days in one term

Please note, only “Unexplained” students are reported to the Department for Education. We use the “Persistent Non-attendance” data collection to report for this purpose.
