

Dear sir.

I came in Australia 2007 April came here as a student, i did foundation study in Australia then after i did hospitality management with cookery at government TAFE and i finished my study in November 2009 then after i start my Bachelor of hospitality management and i am also working as part time cook (20 hours week). I already applied 485 (TR) in December 2009. I am lawful person in Australia i followed al the requirements which i need to full fill my application to successful. Spend lots of money to study here. I am 38 years old and i am living with my wife i have 2 kids and they are 14 years old both are in my home county i didn't see them last three years

When I heard news that my course cook is not is sol and i can not able to apply for PR i am shocked because Australia is the best countries in the world and i don't want to go other country

I understand governments wants to make Australian immigration system better but i really working hard applied on faith that my application would be judged as normal

I spend lots of time and money in Australia. I lived in Australia without my children and they also fill same as me but my aim is that get better education from Australia and then after i want to work in same field in Australia and i am doing same way

I am working as cook and i want to apply for PR so my request is that government will thing about those people who spend lots of time and money and also working in same filed so government have to give chance to get PR in Australia
