Introduction and disclosure

In Australia, donors to political parties or associated entities are required to disclose donations above a particular threshold. The current threshold is set at \$13,000 and is the subject of annual indexation linked to CPI.

There has been continuing controversy in relation to the current system of disclosing donations, including the relatively high threshold and the significant delay in publication of the data, use of associated entities to avoid clear disclosure, and inappropriate use of taxpayer funded resources to facilitate fundraising (see, for example a recent episode of Four Corners, and Fairfax media articles on the Liberal Party linked Millennium Forum and fundraising activity in the Victorian electorate of Menzies).

However, some data are published on the Internet by the Australian Electoral Commission \(AEC\) on an annual basis. These data have the potential to provide information about the financial influence exerted on policy and politicians by corporate and other vested interests. All data referred to in this report are sourced from the AEC unless otherwise specified.

The research reported in this interim report is intended to provide information to the Alliance for Gambling Reform (which commissioned and funded the research), and to support the preparation of research papers as a component of an Australian Research Council (ARC) Linkage Project (LP130100046) in which the author is a Chief Investigator. The ARC project is focused on mechanisms of influence utilised by the gambling, alcohol and tobacco industries in Australia.

This interim report is focused on donations declared by The Australian Hotels Association. Additional reports have or will be focused on donations declared by other gambling industry donors.

Method

We accessed AEC political donation data for the period 1998-1999 until 2014-2015 from the AEC's website and downloaded this in the form of excel spreadsheets. We then classified donations according to their recipient organisation, with classifications related to the party or organisation branch identified by the donor as the recipient of the donation or other contribution. A glossary of branches, etc, identified is contained at appendix 1.

We also identified donations made to specific individual politicians, or their specific campaigns, where possible. For the most part, donations or contributions were recorded as being made to a party state branch or division, or to the party federal organisation. However, in some cases donations were specified as having been made to an individual or her/his campaign or electorate branch. We report such individual contributions below.

All data were analysed to provide descriptive statistics. The data were also aggregated and prepared for graphic and tabular presentation. Aggregated data are presented in the next following section.

Overall donations made by Australian Hotels Association branches

During the period 1998-2015, six branches of the Australian Hotels Association (AHA) declared political donations totaling $6,096,875. Table 1 shows the Victorian branch reported the highest amount of donations, followed by AHA New South Wales and AHA South Australia. Combined, these three branches account for $5,120,506 or 84% of the total reported donations.

More than half ($3,439,616 or 56%) of the total donations reported by the AHA branches were received during the five year period 2010-2015. The donations and allocation of donations to political parties are described in more detail under the AHA branch sections below. Each section includes a table showing the monetary distribution of donations and figures showing the total donations and total proportion of donations by political party.

Australian Hotels Association ACT donations

The ACT branch of the AHA declared a total of $291,274 during the period 1998-2015. However donations were only declared during the years 1998-2007.

The average donation declared over each of these seven years was $41,611.

Nearly half of the total donations ($143,000 or 49%) were received by the Federal branch of the Liberal Party.

Australian Hotels Association Federal Office donations

A total of $623,100 was declared by the Federal Office of the AHA during 1998-2015. The Federal Office declared donations only for the years 2011-2015. The average annual donation over these years was $155,755.

In 2011-2012 a donation of $250,000 was made to the Federal branch of the Liberal Party.

In 2012-2013 two donations of $150,000 were made to each of the ALP NT branch and the Country Liberal Party.

Australian Hotels Association New South Wales donations

The New South Wales branch of the AHA declared a total of $1,930,397 during the period 1998-2015. During this period, donations were declared for ten years. The average donation declared for each of these years was thus $193,040. Although the largest beneficiary of these donations was the NSW ALP ($530,550) the coalition parties received 56.5% of donations declared during this period. In 2010-11 over $700,000 went to coalition interests alone.

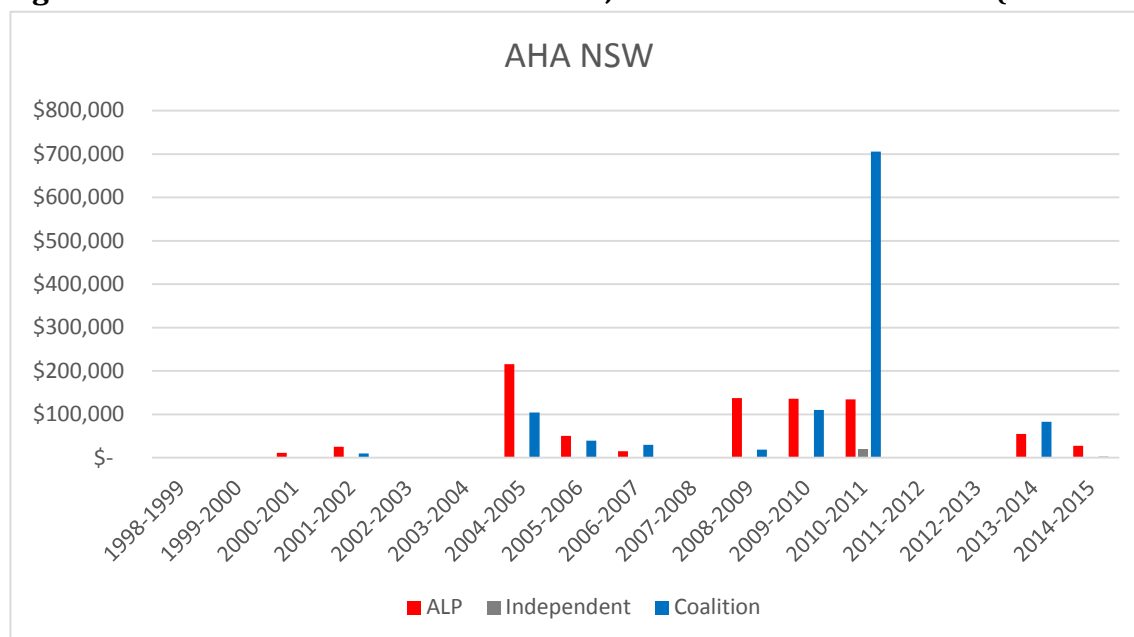

No donations were reported for 2011-2012. However, a return document submitted for that period by ClubsNSW shows that AHA NSW contributed $644,280 to the $3,478,581 spent on political expenditure by ClubsNSW in that year. AHA NSW is also listed as contributing $216,197 in 2010-2011 to ClubsNSW, again for political expenditure.

Australian Hotels Association South Australia donations

Donations totaling $1,230,530 was declared by the South Australian branch of the AHA between 1998-2015. Donations were reported for 14 years during this period, with average annual declared donations of $87,895.

In 10 of the 14 years, the donations were generally equally distributed between the branches and divisions of the ALP and Liberal Party. Total political party allocations demonstrate that the ALP received $607,451 and the Liberal Party $623,079. However, there were two periods where the Liberal Party was either the only party to receive donations ($27,900 in 2002-2003) or received the larger share of donations ($49,785 or nearly 91% of total donations in 2011-2012). The ALP received the majority (92%) or $18,600 of the $20,095 donated in 2003-2004.

AHA Tasmania declared donations only to the Liberal Party in two of the three years (2002-2003 and 2013-2014).

Australian Hotels Association Victoria donations

The Victorian branch of the AHA declared a total of $1,959,579 during the period 1998-2015.

Donations were not reported during years 1998-1999, 2001-2002, 2007-2008 and 2008-2009. Thus the average donation amount for the 13 years for which donations were declared was $150,737. The majority of AHA Victoria donations ($1,412,854 or 72%) were declared during 2009-2015. The total annual donations ranged from a minimum of $6,680 in 2005-2006 to a maximum of $445,020 in 2012-2013.

Overall the Coalition received a significantly greater share of donations than the ALP. The Coalition received $1,332,502 or nearly 68% of the total declared, compared to the ALP which received 32% or $627,077. There were two periods (2011-2012 and 2013-2014) in which all donations declared went to the Coalition. Additionally, in 2012-2013 nearly 95% or $422,320 of donations went to the Coalition.

Table 7 demonstrates that the Victorian division of the Liberal Party received $794,699 or nearly 41% of the total donations. Another $62,250 in donations were originally designated as being made to the Victorian division of the Liberal party but were earmarked on annual return documents (or in one case, were identifiable from recipient declarations) as being intended for individuals or specific campaigns.

Donations were also declared to associated entities related to the Victorian division of the Liberal Party (Enterprise 500, Liberal MP Andrew Robb's fundraising body Bayside Forum, and Kevin Andrews Menzies 200) and one associated entity related to the ALP (Progressive Business Association). Table 7 below also details the period and quantum of donations to these associated entities.

During 2010-2011, 2012-2013 and 2014-2015, several large donations (up to $100,000) were received by the Victorian branches and divisions of the ALP and Liberal parties and the federal organisation of the Liberal party. An itemised list of these donations is set out in Table 8.

Allocation of donations to individuals, specific campaigns, specific local Party branches, etc.

The AHA often declared donations made to party branches or divisions, such as the NSW division of the Liberal Party or a branch of the ALP, or to the federal organisations of the parties. In a number of instances however, AHA branches declared donations made to specific campaigns or specific individual politicians. Again, these were almost invariably members of the major parties.

Tables 9-14 (below) set out the donations in these categories declared by the AHA in the period 2001-02 to 2014-15.

Some substantial donations appear in this table, and major beneficiaries include both ALP and LNP federal and state MPs or their campaign funds.

Over this period, major recipients (i.e., $3,000 or more) of these declared donations who were named or whose campaigns or electorate branches were named, included:

- Telmo Languiller (ALP, Vic) - $20,000
- Andrew Robb (Lib Fed, Vic) - $25,500 (incl. Bayside Forum)

In addition, associated entities and third parties were also provided with funds, including the following:
