

Please find below the ASFU's response to the following question on notice:

Your experience with the US-UK nuclear safety regulation regimes and requirements, and whether you have dealt with affiliates in the UK or the US around their experience including worker safety and other regulations.

The ASFU's has not engaged with affiliated US and UK unions on issues of nuclear safety regulation. International engagement relating to naval shipbuilding has been focused on issues relating to workforce development, workplace and worker safety, industrial relations, precinct development, technology interoperability and worker entitlements relating to continuous shipbuilding projects involving multiple primes.

Until such time as the government announces next steps on the AUKUS build process, the ASFU will continue to monitor and engage in its development relating to workforce safety and training.