

SENATE LEGAL AND CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS REFERENCES COMMITTEE

Administrative Appeals Tribunal

Question F:

Senator Hon Kim Carr asked the following question on 1 December 2021:

With reference to the article in the Daily Telegraph on 30 October 2021 by Piers Akerman entitled “Penalising AAT members weakens out country’s borders” and, in particular, Mr Akerman’s reference to “[s]ome senior members” being “rewarded by being assigned ‘special’ projects that significantly reduce their workload”, please:

1. identify, by name, every senior member or deputy president in the Migration and Refugee Division who has been assigned a “special” project;
2. explain the extent to which the assignment of that project has “significantly reduce[d] their workloads”; and
3. explain what the “special” project is and why the Tribunal assigned it to the relevant member.

The response to the Honourable Senator’s question is as follows:

No Deputy Presidents undertake work in the Migration and Refugee Division (MRD) other than the Division Head, Deputy President Jan Redfern.

The article which is the subject of the question is based on an incorrect premise. No senior members have been assigned special projects that have significantly reduced their workload. A number of senior members have a reduced caseload benchmark to take into account work undertaken as part of their responsibilities as Executive Members or Practice Leaders as outlined in Attachment A. Further, from time to time some senior members have been asked to work on ad-hoc projects, but this has not further reduced their existing caseload benchmark.

As such, the answer to the Honourable Senator’s question is as follows:

1. Senior Member Dr Denis Dragovic has represented the Division Head on various committees and has actively participated in the Tribunal’s COVID response working group. Senior Member Justin Owen has worked with registry in reviewing arrangements in place for the support of members. Senior Members Antoinette Younes, Louise Nicholls and Kate Millar have assisted the Division Head in reviewing the expressions of interest register for member appointments.
2. This work did not reduce the respective workload or caseload benchmarks of these senior members.
3. See the response to question 1. These senior members were asked to complete this work by the Division Head as she considered they were the most suitable to undertake the role.

Additional contextual information is provided in Attachment A to assist the Committee.

Attachment A

The Migration & Refugee Division (MRD) is the largest division in the Tribunal with more lodgements and finalisations than the other divisions combined. The MRD, and its predecessor, has had a long-standing practice of designating leadership and executive roles to senior members to undertake important and often time-consuming leadership and executive management functions to assist the Division Head (and before that the Principal Member) in ensuring that the business of the Division is conducted in the most efficient and effective manner.

The work undertaken by these senior members with designated executive roles enhances the productivity and effectiveness of work done in the Division and this has been evidenced by the increasing number of finalisations over the past few years in relation to what has become an increasingly complicated and aged caseload overall.

There are senior members who have been nominated as Executive Members for each region and they have overall responsibility for the management of the caseload and oversight of the membership in each location. This involves liaising with members within their teams about the constitution of cases, over time cases, any issues that may be raised in relation to successful appeals, professional development, approval of leave and timesheets, liaison with registry about administrative issues impacting members and generally providing advice, guidance and assistance where required in relation to the conduct of reviews. There are 151 active members in the MRD and each Executive Member has oversight of between 12 and up to 25 members in each location. This role can be very time-consuming and was especially difficult during the pandemic when Executive Members took on the added responsibility of engaging with members working remotely to ensure the MRD could continue to undertake the important work of the Division.

The role of an Executive Member is set out in the position description in Attachment B. Based on assessments that this role would generally involve at least 2 to 3 days additional work each week, it was determined by the Division Head a number of years ago to provide senior members assigned this role with a reduction in their annual benchmark of 50%. In addition, Executive Members are expected to undertake the more difficult reviews. Accordingly, any reduction in benchmarks is intended to take into account the time spent by the senior member in undertaking these functions.

There are also senior members who have been nominated as Practice Leaders for each caseload or particular areas. It is the role of the Practice Leader to have national oversight over their practice area, which includes identifying significant cases for constitution to particular members, identifying any legal or practice and procedure issues that need to be communicated to members more generally, liaising with the legal services area to amend or update decision precedents or legal commentaries, undertaking the reviews of the more significant cases, examining the caseload and any particular trends or issues that may need to be communicated to members, arranging regular focus groups or professional development training for members on developments in the law and, where appropriate, working with early case assessment registrars to triage cases and identify projects so that cases can be finalised in a more timely manner.

The role of Practice Leader is set out in the position description in Attachment B. Based on assessments that this role would generally involve at least 2 to 3 days additional work each week, it was determined by the Division Head a number of years ago to provide senior members assigned this role with a reduction in their annual benchmark of 50%. In addition, Practice Leaders are expected to undertake the more difficult reviews. Accordingly, any reduction in benchmarks is intended to take into account the time spent by the senior member in undertaking these functions.

An additional practice leadership role of Chair of the MRD Professional Development Committee was created in March 2021. This role involves, amongst other things, coordination and leadership of MRD member professional development initiatives.

From time to time the Division Head may ask senior members to undertake discrete projects in working with registry. As noted in the response, senior members are not given any additional discounts for undertaking this work and it is absorbed as part of their general executive role. .

Two senior members have dual roles. Senior Member Louise Nicholls is both Executive Member of the protection team in the Sydney registry and the Practice Leader with national responsibility for the oversight of the visitor caseload. Senior Member Nicholls has been allocated an additional benchmark reduction of 10% to take into account these additional responsibilities. Senior Member Kate Millar is assigned to multiple divisions. She works across MRD and the General Division (GD) where she has been assigned the role of Practice Leader for Social Services and Child Support (Tier 2) matters in the G&OD. Senior Member Millar works equally between MRD and GD and is therefore given a 50% reduction in her benchmark to reflect the work undertaken in the GD. Like all Executive Members in the MRD, she is allowed a 50% reduction in her MRD benchmark to take into account the work involved in this role.

The table below lists MRD Senior Members who have a leadership role in the Division and the related adjustment to the benchmark for the current financial year as of 10 December 2021:

Senior Member	Leadership role	Benchmark reduction	Notes
Louise Nicholls	Executive Member for NSW Protection team and Practice Leader for the Visitor caseload	50%	Executive Member (EM)
		10%	Practice Leader (PL) role

Dr Denis Dragovic	Executive Member for Vic Migration team	50%	Standard reduction for EM
James Lambie	Executive Member for Qld Member team	50%	Standard reduction for EM
Kate Millar	Executive Member for SA/NT Member team and Practice Leader for Social Services and Child Support (Tier 2) Matters in the G&OD	50% 50% of MRD benchmark ie 75%	Reduction for work in GD Standard reduction for EM
Antoinette Younes	Practice Leader for Bridging, Cancellations and Other caseloads	50%	Standard reduction for PL
Kira Raif	Practice Leader for Family and Partner caseloads	50%	Standard reduction for PL
Rania Skaros	Practice Leader for Business and Skilled caseloads	50%	Standard reduction for PL
Shahyar Roushan	Practice Leader for Protection caseload	50%	Standard reduction for PL
Michael Ison	Chair of MRD Member Professional Development Committee	50%	Standard reduction for role

Note: Senior Members Louie Hawas, Grant Chapman and Michael Cooke are not included in this table as they do not hold leadership roles in the MRD and do not receive a discount to their benchmark. Senior Members Rachel Westaway, Perry Wood and John Cipolla previously held leadership roles in the MRD but now work in other divisions and are no longer active with the MRD.
