Dear Colleagues

Various claims by former child migrants against the Commonwealth

We write further to our call on 18 June 2020 in which we discussed the anticipated timescale for the response from the Australian Government Solicitor (AGS) to the Trust's settlement proposal.

Our client was extremely concerned to learn that the AGS is not yet in a position to respond, and that you did not anticipate having instructions from the Attorney-General until the end of July at the earliest.

The history of the negotiations bears repeating. The Trust's settlement proposal was sent to you on 20 August 2019, more than 10 months ago. In the months that followed, there was some engagement on the terms and rationale for that proposal, culminating on 5 December 2019 with our provision of further information about the underlying figures. We had hoped to finalise the agreement shortly after but unfortunately, in the 6 months since then, there has been no response from the AGS at all, as a result of which it has not been possible to make any progress in the negotiations.

The Trust has done what it can in the meantime to put Fairbridge in a position whereby it can participate directly in negotiations and ultimately implement any settlement, principally by arranging for it to be restored to the register of companies and appointing an administrator. However further progress is now almost entirely dependent on the AGS and Attorney-General engaging; unless that happens, we are stymied.

This is source of considerable concern for the Trust, but not simply because it wishes to draw a line under the claims which have been intimated by the AGS, but also due to the potential impact on the victims and survivors of Fairbridge. The Trust is also extremely conscious of the possibility that, once a settlement has been agreed with the AGS under which the Trust agrees to make a contribution to Fairbridge, Fairbridge may be able to participate in the National Redress Scheme. The continued delay is therefore impacting not only the Trust and the AGS, but also risks delaying a settlement that would be of benefit to the victims and survivors who might ultimately have access to redress once the settlement has been agreed. Any delay has a disproportionate impact on the victims and survivors of Fairbridge due to their age and, in many cases, poor health, and so we urge you to consider this matter as a matter of urgency.

We understand that Fairbridge is coming under some pressure from the Minister for Families and Social Services to confirm its willingness to participate in the National Redress Scheme. Furthermore, and as we have discussed, there has also been speculation in the press about the possibility of Fairbridge being funded so that it is in a position to make a meaningful contribution to the National Redress Scheme.

Whilst the Trust is not unsympathetic to the demands which must have been placed on the AGS and the Attorney-General in recent months, and in particular the impact of COVID-19, we have reached a point at which we must insist that these negotiations are prioritised. In circumstances where the continued delay is potentially prejudicial to the victims and survivors, it is not acceptable for the AGS to indicate that there is no certainty about the timing of its response, whilst at the same time Fairbridge and the Trust are coming under considerable, and understandable, pressure from the National Redress Scheme.

We ask that you draw this letter to the personal attention of the Attorney General so that he is made aware that this matter requires his urgent attention and of the implications of further delay. We then invite the AGS to respond substantively to the Trust's settlement offer by Friday 17 July 2020 at the latest.

In the meantime, we also propose to pass a copy of this letter to the Minister for Families and Social Services so that she understands the reasons why Fairbridge cannot progress its discussions about potential participation in the National Redress Scheme, and to invite her office to discuss this with the AGS directly.

We look forward to hearing from you by no later than Friday 17 July 2020.

Yours faithfully
