

I write to provide a new insight to wind farms. I have recently moved to Portland, Victoria to work in the disability services sector.

There are a number of wind farms in our part of South West Victoria and I find them to be well located for the majority of cases and appropriate in their need within the area.

As a purely personal issue I find them to be fascinating pieces of equipment and I personally do not find them a visual blight. Quite the opposite.

I will happily speak with any body from your office who may wish to discuss my thoughts with me.

Phil Cole