Topic: Policy, process or procedure for stranded Australians

Senator: Keneally

Question reference number: 0230

Type of question: Written 29 September 2020

Date set by the committee for the return of answer: Tuesday 13 October 2020

Number of pages: 1

Question:

Is your agency aware of any Australian Government policy, process or procedure that is in place to ensure that stranded Australians will be prioritised over other potential entrants to Australia?

a. If yes:

- i. Can you name those policies, processes or procedures?
- ii. When did these policies, processes or procedures come into effect?

b. If no:

- i. Are any policies, processes or procedures being prepared to ensure that stranded?

Answer:

The Australian Government's primary commitment is to support Australians who wish to return to Australia. It is the clear expectation of the Prime Minister that returning Australian nationals and permanent residents take priority when utilising quarantine capacity.

This policy has been applied with the consideration of pilots for international students, which the Prime Minister, the Hon Scott Morrison MP, announced on 12 June 2020, and seasonal workers, which the Prime Minister announced on 21 August 2020. In both instances, the Prime Minister made clear that returning Australian nationals and permanent residents must take priority when it comes to utilising limited quarantine capacity. The Prime Minister also asked state and territory governments to work with airlines to ensure international students are placed on flights that have not exhausted their cap allocation, as advised by the Department of Infrastructure, Transport, Regional Development and Cities.

The Government is working urgently on a range of options for the return of Australians, including through commercial and facilitated flights.
