Inquiry into innovation and creativity: workforce for the new economy

Issue date: Monday, 13 March 2017

Creative and Employer Organisations to Discuss Innovation and Creativity with Committee

As part of its inquiry into Innovation and Creativity: Workforce for the New Economy the Standing Committee on Employment, Education and Training will hear from various creative and employer organisations in a series of public hearing roundtables to be held in Sydney, Melbourne and Brisbane.

Committee Chair Mr Andrew Laming MP said hearing from those working in creative industries and from employer groups was very important to the Committee.

“As an inquiry focussing on Innovation and Creativity in relation to the Workforce for a New Economy it will be good to hear from a wide variety of creative and employer organisations across three days in three of Australia’s major cities,” Mr Laming said.

Committee Deputy Chair Ms Terri Butler MP said she was looking forward to hearing from the organisations.

“The Committee has taken a lot of evidence on innovation and balancing this with some good discussions around creativity will be very useful and interesting. The roundtable forum will be a good way to allow witnesses to address each other and collaborate to bring the best views to the Committee,” Ms Butler said.
