People and the effect that Global Warming (accelerated by human short-sighted actions) will have on all of us should be the first priority of responsible government.

Do no harm is a useful guideline the Senate would be wise to keep at the forefront of its deliberations.

Our grandchildren's grandchildren need you to think of them before it is too late.

They are already saddled with massive debt don't make it tougher than it has to be.

This is a universal issue not just a local one.
