

Subject: Dr WilmaJohnson and the Chronic Disease Dental Scheme

Categories: Submissions

To Whom it may concern

Wilma has been my dentist for a number of years. She has impressed me not only with her competence as a dentist but also by her kindness and consideration when it comes to billing. I am an old age pensioner and not privately insured and Wilma has always been very generous with her services. To make her look money minded and even worse, dishonest is outrageous.

The fact that a large number of dentists have "slipped up " on the correct paperwork implies to me that the information they were given before they commenced work on patients covered by the Chronic Disease Dental Scheme, was not good and clear enough.

It is a crying shame that good people like Wilma Johnson are put through this stress and expected to pay exorbitant sums of money which have not even taken into account costs incurred by them in the course of their work. It now looks like chronically ill patients are not being treated anymore. (luckily I am not one of them)

Elsa Fischer