

PARLIAMENT OF AUSTRALIA

Joint Standing Committee on Migration

MEDIA RELEASE

Issued: 23 June 2015

*Chair: Mrs Louise Markus MP
Deputy: Ms Maria Vamvakinou MP*

Addressing labour shortages and alleviating poverty with the Seasonal Worker Programme

Federal Parliament's Joint Standing Committee on Migration will investigate a number of issues including whether the Seasonal Worker Programme (SWP) should be expanded to include other countries and sectors, when it holds its first public hearing as part of its inquiry into the Programme tomorrow in Canberra.

Committee Chair, Louise Markus said the SWP provides significant benefits to Australia's horticulture industry, our Pacific Island partners and Timor-Leste.

"The Seasonal Worker Programme increases productivity in areas of labour shortages. It also provides potential benefits to the participants of the programme through skills development, knowledge transfer and poverty alleviation," she said.

The committee will hear from the Department of Employment as it examines:

- the role of seasonal workers in the horticulture industry;
- whether the SWP should be expanded to include other countries and sectors;
- how the SWP affects Australian jobs;
- increasing access for overseas women and youth workers;
- how the SWP supports development in the Pacific; and
- issues with attracting seasonal workers, including the granting of visas.
