

To whom it may concern,

I am writing to convey our displeasure of the proposed "Public Benefit test" by the senate Economics Committee. It is a clear attempt by the government to curtail freedoms that religious groups have enjoyed in this country for many years. Most churches and charitable organizations who contribute enormously to the fabric and stability of our society only survive because of our taxation laws. And we make this contribution because we have certain freedoms to believe what we believe. This proposed bill certainly threatens that position.

Kind Regards

Brett Richardson