

Having the right conversations

Start your own RIPA

Interested in starting your own RIPA? Contact us and we will arrange for someone to talk with parents about how RIPA National can help you set up your own local RIPA. Having your own local RIPA means issues that affect your community can also be raised with RIPA National to enable a collective voice at the national level.

RIPA is for families

RIPA is about facilitating opportunities for Indigenous parents and families from remote Communities to have a voice on matters concerning the well-being and education of their children.

The RIPA plan is to widen the circle to facilitate a genuine conversation between parents, families, educators, support agencies, residential boarding providers, schools and communities at a local, regional and national level. It is about doing things WITH each other in ways that build trust and respect cultural differences, values and beliefs. It is about meeting needs in a caring and nurturing environment.

RIPA represents Indigenous parents and families at the local and national level.

We have participated in national forums such as the Senate Standing Committee on Indigenous Affairs:

Inquiry into educational opportunities for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students; ABSTUDY review; Royal Commission into Institutional Responses to Child Sexual Abuse; Study Away Review and other significant events and activities. This provides a great opportunity to share the message about concerns and challenges faced by Indigenous parents in remote communities across Australia.

We attend conferences and workshops to ensure Indigenous parents from remote communities are represented and have a voice.

We encourage communities to develop shared ideas about the possibilities and opportunities for supporting their children's well-being and education.
