

HUMAN RIGHTS IMPLICATIONS OF RECENT VIOLENCE IN IRAN

ABSTRACT

The world would be a much better place without Islamic Republic Regime of Iran, and there are huge benefits for Australia

Human right implications of recent violence in Iran

The Terms of Reference

The recent violence against women and girls by Iranian authorities
Opportunities for nations that value human rights to support those being persecuted and oppressed in Iran
The potential application of sanctions on those responsible for the widespread violence and killing of women, girls and protesters in Iran;
The appropriateness of Iran's ongoing status on the U.N. Commission on the Status of Women;
Other actions available to the Australian Government and other like-minded nations to respond to human rights abuses in Iran;
Related Matters: World will be a better and Safer Place without the Islamic Republic of Iran Regime

Note: There are videos and several external web pages referenced to this article. The printed version may not convey the actual goal of this matter, please read online to see full references.

Human right implications of recent violence in Iran

Contents

1. Executive summary	3
2. About Me	3
3. Imagine the world without I.R. Regime	3
4. How Australia can benefit	5
5. Recommendations and Requesting Actions	6
6. Conclusion	7

Human right implications of recent violence in Iran

1. Executive summary

In this submission, I am not focusing on why governments around the globe should isolate and dismiss the I.R. Regime, as I believe it is now as obvious as the sun in the clear daylight sky.

It is now a time to picture the world without the I.R. regime. A better and more peaceful planet to live on. And in this new world, there are huge benefits for all countries, especially Australia.

2. About Me

I am a member of Woman-Life-Freedom movement in Australia who worked on many initiatives such as Senate and House petitions (EN4559). I moved to Australia 10 years ago and am an Australian citizen.

3. Imagine the world without I.R. Regime

a. Human rights will be respected

- I. Woman's rights: No forced hijab, Equal rights to men.
- II. Ethnic group rights: all ethnic groups and tribes will be respected
- III. Religious freedom: everyone can follow what they believe as far as they don't impose their beliefs on others
- IV. Kids will be kids: no prosecution, jail, abuse, rape, or forced marriage.
- V. Freedom of opinion: no one goes to jail or is sentenced to death for expressing opinions and political views.
- VI. LGBTQ+ rights would be respected

Human right implications of recent violence in Iran

b. One piece of the global thread triangle will be removed

China, Russia, and Iran formed a global alliance, threatening global peace and security. With one piece of the triangle gone, the world would be a much safer place to live. One example is the recent cyber attacks on Australian businesses and government platforms and Iranian military drones in the Ukraine war.

c. Middle-east would be a much safer place, so the world becomes a better place

The geopolitical region of the middle-east plays an important role in global peace, economy, and stability. Iran is now a huge threat in the region. A democratic government would be the guardian of the region, not a threat. That would result in a more stable oil price, impacting many countries' economies.

d. Countries' budgets can be shifted from military to economy and investment

Because of I.R. threats, many countries in the region and around the globe make huge investments in military expansion. Removing such a threat would shift tax-payers money into more productive investments that would benefit not just the residents of each country but also a big contributor to the global economy and safety.

e. Global warming and air pollution would be reduced

Human right implications of recent violence in Iran

Currently, the I.R. regime is a big contributor to global warming and air pollution by using and producing low-quality fuels for power plants, factories, and cars. This will impact all countries around the world.

f. Animals' rights would be respected

Under the I.R. regime, many rare species are on the brink of extinction. Too many dogs were brutally killed, and it is also illegal to have dogs and cats as pets.

g. Human civilisation would be preserved

I.R. regime is systematically changing ancient Persian history, with no proper care and attention to historical sites and heritage. Persian civilisation, as one the rare ancient empires, developed by the first human right charter in the world. This culture belongs to the world and can not be guarded under I.R. regime's rusty ideologies and barbaric behaviours.

4. How Australia can benefit

Australia and Iran are both losing too many opportunities under the I.R. regime. This includes but is not limited to:

- a. The huge Export market for Australian producers, especially for Wine, Wool, Coal, Frozen beef, cotton, wood, and seafood industry.
- b. Access to cheap resources and workers. Many Australian companies can produce their products using cheap resources and workers in Iran for a more competitive price in global markets, shifting from China to Iran.

Human right implications of recent violence in Iran

- c. Huge opportunities for mutual investments, as both countries have lots of opportunities for investment in new markets, technologies, and start-ups.
- d. Huge opportunity for Australian mine companies to engage in the vast Iranian mines and resources market.
- e. Great academic opportunities would emerge as many students and universities are interested in working with high-end Australian universities.
- f. There are huge opportunities for the tourism industry, as both countries can attract tourists.
- g. Safer Australians and a more productive Iranian community in Australia, as the threat to our safety and security, would be eliminated.
- h. In a safe and free Iran, fewer or no refugees come to Australia from Iran and probably surrounding countries, resulting in less cost for Australian taxpayers; however, immigration through skilled workers, work and holiday, or business investment could be strengthened.

5. Recommendations and Requesting Actions

Support the Iranian revolution by isolating I.R. Regime representatives in Australia and all international platforms.

This could be achieved through our requests as reflected in the Senate and House petitions (EN4559), which are also supported by more than 55k signatures and includes but are not limited to:

1. Expel the Islamic Republic ambassador and anyone with a close connection to I.R. Government.

Human right implications of recent violence in Iran

2. Enact Magnitsky-style sanctions against key actors and members of the Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps (IRGC) and the Islamic regime oligarchs similar to the Russian oligarchs (March 2022).
3. Immediately banish the ambassadors or other representatives of the Iran's Islamic regime in Australia, serving either within embassies or international institutions, personae non grata and order their removal from Australia in protest to the illegal and inhumane treatment of protesters in Iran.
4. Impose sanctions on IRGC and the I.R. government and cut all ties with the brutal terrorist regime.
5. Ensure measures are placed to avoid Taxpayers' Money is used to support the brutality of I.R. Government activities, including money invested in Australia by the individuals connected to Iranian officials.
6. Deport or revoke the citizenship of Islamic regime oligarchs and their children and grandchildren in Australia.
7. Refrain from issuing visas to persons connected to the Islamic Regime, including but not limited to the children and grandchildren of Islamic regime officials.

6. Conclusion

Support the Iranian revolution by isolating I.R. Regime representatives in Australia and all international platforms. The benefits of removing the I.R. Regime from power are global, and Australia can take huge advantage of such change in Iran.