Hello there,

I totally oppose any move by government to introduce 'Ag Gag' legislation. The need for crimes of cruelty against animals to be reported and prosecuted is obvious to all decent Australians and there is simply no justification for wanting to introduce laws that may result in any one guilty of cruelty being let off for insufficient evidence. Those who devote their time and in some cases safety, jobs and incomes to defend the interests of animals, deserve reward and respect not punishment. Never blame the messenger and always prosecute the guilty.

Thank you,

Kind regards,

Alison Noble
