

Dear Sir/ Madam

Attached please find a document on the effects of industrial wind turbines on the sleep of those living too near. My credentials for writing this paper are outlined in the first section. Proofs of Evidence based upon this document have been used for five Planning Inquiries in the UK and as evidence to an Environmental Review Tribunal in Ontario, Canada.

My conclusion is that the minimum setback for industrial wind turbines is 1.5km and an external noise level of less than 35dB(A). These conclusions are based upon the evidence to hand at the beginning of 2011. Further evidence is emerging that will mandate greater setbacks and lesser permitted noise levels.

If any of the experts considering the evidence wished to enter into any correspondence or if they wished assistance in locating any of the references, I shall be happy to oblige.

CD Hanning