

Although there will be some financial and emotional distress due to the implementation of the proposed legislation one must not forget that this is often the case when an individual tries to take undue advantage by going after the loop holes in any system.

Recent reports about a drop in number of international students enrolling for VET courses linked to migration is proof enough that some individuals like migration agents, training providers and students as well were hand in glove to exploit the system. This is the worst form of human trafficking under the disguise of education.

I strongly advocate that this bill be passed so that we can target the RIGHT candidates for migration and this particular event acts as a deterrent to individuals trying to rot the system.
