

THE SPIROCHAETE WARFARE

“Once upon a time...

One day the Devil was in very good humour because he had just finished a mirror, which had this peculiar power:

Everything good and beautiful that was reflected in it seemed to dwindle to almost nothing at all, while everything that was worthless and ugly became most conspicuous and even uglier than ever.

The loveliest landscapes looked like boiled spinach and the very best people became hideous,...

When the devil and his disciples then wanted to even fly to heaven to scoff at the angels and God, the mirror’s grinning grimace became wider and wider the higher they flew and it started trembling in their hands with such violence that it slipped from their hands and fell to the earth, where it shattered into hundreds of millions of billions of bits.

Once they got into people’s eyes...they would distort everything these people saw and make them only see the bad side of things.

A few people even got a glass splinter in their hearts, and that was a terrible thing, for it turned their hearts into lumps of ice...”

Would the Danish author Hans Christian Andersen have anticipated the effects of Biological Weapons, which were to be invented a century later?

When Andersen published his most complex fairy tale “The Snow Queen” in 1844, just before Christmas, would he have known that such a devil’s mirror was going to be invented only a hundred years later?

In 1944 Barclay Newman, a leading science writer of his time and former US Navy malaria scientist published his book “Japan’s secret weapon”.

Even though he refers mostly to the development of Japanese biological weapons in many of their gruesome aspects, Chapter IV of his book is called:

THE SPIROCHAETE WARFARE.

Now, more than 70 years later, more than 170 years after the publishing of The Snow Queen, we are still discussing, if maybe...something like this...the Devil’s Mirror...the Spirochaete Warfare...might exist at all.....

If you watch the news once in a while, you might be inclined to start understanding Anderson’s message?

If you’d watched ABC last Monday, the 11 of January 2016, you might start to think that there could be some truth in the idea of the SPIROCHAETE WARFARE.

For those, who have missed out on the short but good ABC documentary about LYME DISEASE, watch it:<http://www.abc.net.au/7.30/content/2015/s4386727.htm>

NOW, how does this all fit together?

The Devil, The Snow Queen, The Japanese Biological weapons, ABC on LYME...???

Can you see the link?

I’m sure you can’t ☺

Therefore my article:

Let me start my article with another quote of Hans Christian Anderson, one of my heroes:
“Now then! We will begin. When the story is done you will know a great deal more than you do now.”

I hope that you will know more and have a different perspective on Lyme soon! We will begin:

Once upon a time...

...there was World War II.

As a staunch German I may say that the Germans started this war, which was crueler, bloodier and crazier than any war had been ever before on this planet.

BUT:

Germany is not only the mother country of the last 2 World Wars, it is also the source of the greatest philosophers, thinkers, musicians and...scientists of the last few centuries.

No wonder that any kind of demonic or even devilish forces have tried to get hold of this –German-brainpower for centuries...with or without success...depending on the brainpower’s owner.

No need to say that many have succumbed to the temptations of power and money.

Traditionally, for much longer a period than only the last bloody century, the demonic forces have tried to get a hold of...Germany’s brain power.

Too often they have been pretty successful.

Once upon a time...

...there was a genius biologist, Erich Traub.

As an outstanding person in his field in the middle of last century, he would have had two options, when the Nazis came into power: co-operate or exile.

We will never know, why people would have chosen to co-operate.

What would have been YOUR choice under the circumstances given?

Can we really judge???

I suggest that we should not.

Nevertheless, there are good and bad decisions made by our ancestors. No doubt.

Erich Traub has probably made a bad decision:

He decided to co-operate with the terror-regime of Hitler.

Logically, as a star-biologist...under Hitler...he would have been researching into Biological weapons, wouldn’t he.

And, since he had this genius German brainpower...he would have been successful in almost ANY job, wouldn’t he.

And so he was.

The predominant thought behind his research was:

Insects are much more numerous than mammals.

They are everywhere.

Insects are fantastic carriers for virus, bacteria and the like.

Why not let insects be the carriers of dis-eases?

And why not use what was available in abundance???

Ticks inhabit German forests like a pest.

And then...why not ‘modify’ the germs to make them a deadly danger?

Ethics, Morals...who cares.

WHY NOT???

WHY NOT???

...after all...we are living in a world of “anything goes”...

What would be the higher power to stop “anything goes?”

GOD???

What an old fashioned concept.

“Anything goes” ...is the ruler of our times.

And the Devil is laughing.....

Back to the story:

Erich Traub, the German biologist...sold his soul...to the Devil, in his days obviously represented by Hitler and his regime.

Hence he started into this ---very sophisticated!!!---research on how to use an insect as a carrier:

The common TICKS.

German forests are full of ticks.

Once a tick has bitten, it will cling to the host...

What wonderful carrier.

Ticks have always and always will...be the hosts of parasites. The predominant tick parasite are: Borrelia...Borrelia are SPIROCHAETES, like e.g. the parasite, which causes Syphilis: Treponema.

SPIROCHAETE WARFARE.

Parasites are a bit bigger than bacteria...with all the advantages and disadvantages for their survival.

Their biggest advantage is that they can replicate in various kinds of ways...also, almost being a worm...they can duplicate and multiply like...worms, just by cutting themselves in two.....

Wouldn't creatures like that fulfil many criteria for a Biological weapon?

They needed to be altered a bit, of course...not a problem for a well- trained biologist of this time of pioneers in many fields of science.

Hence ...the genius German biologist ERICH TRAUB chose the borrelia/tick duo as an almost perfect...BIOLOGICAL WEAPON.

Originally meant to infect the Russian cattle...the glamorous duo has meanwhile taken quite a different path:

It is no secret that the allies, who eventually won WWII, took German scientist as their loot.

The Atomic Bomb...and... the Borrelia.

Most probably the Borrelia will cost many, many more lives, cause much more suffering and will be much harder to fight than the Atomic Bomb has so far.....

Back to the story:

After having been a leading figure in the Nazi German war crime machine, Erich Traub would certainly have faced the death sentence in the Nuremberg Trials.

He did not.

Instead, he followed the kind offer of the US to co-operate...or should we better call it: collaborate?

Either way, Herr Traub chose the easy way out, like he had done before:

In the 1950ies he started his research again...

...on PLUM ISLAND...in the US.

PLUM ISLAND is a small place off shore Connecticut, a remote island of no importance so far.

NOW...listen carefully to the story:

After a while, after Hiroshima and the Cuba crisis, after J.F. Kennedy's death, after the disaster of the Vietnam war...the US government decided that Biological Weapons might not be the answer to...it all...any more. Therefore they decided to give up on...PLUM ISLAND.

'Giving up' a biological laboratory in those days pretty much meant: leave it. Fullstop.

Precautions? Environmental consciousness came later-too late for LYME!

Back to the story:

In 1975 a strange new disease was discussed in the Medical Community with a fair bit of excitement: LYME DISEASE.

When I started my studies of Medicine in 1976 at the Free University of Berlin, unquestionably a traditional hub of good science as much as free spirits and innovative thinking..., LYME DISEASE was discussed as something really random, something, which did not tick ANY boxes, something, which had never happened before.

We are in the very centre of Robert Koch here and Professor Sauerbruch, Einstein, the very, very centre of almost any innovation in medicine and natural sciences for a long time!

To these great scientists...LYME was...somehow...WEIRD. Unexplainable, different, more EVIL...than anything they had seen before!

The end of this story:

LYME is the name of a little township, which is located on the US mainland I Conneticut opposite...guess...opposite:

PLUM ISLAND.

LYME DIS-EASE is named after the location of its first outbreak.

End of this part of the story.

Story continued:

Ever after 1975 LYME DISEASE has been spreading like a bush fire, first all over the US, a bit later back to Europe and from there very quickly ALL OVER THE WORLD.

In times of extensive mass tourism it is easy to spread...

HOW precisely would Australia have been able to keep itself free from worldwide LYME?

ONE infected person would have been enough.....

If this is so...

WHY then would the Australian Medical authorities keep denying the mere existence of this huge health problem?

WHY would a whole continent be forced to suffer from the most various kinds of diseases which are inter-related with an infection with Borrelia???

WHY would the very few Australian Medical Doctors, who try to help, get in serious trouble for it???

WHY all this hiding?

WHY a censorship on urgently necessary medical progress???

Common sense would not be able to find an answer, would it?

So, WHY???

WHY all this hiding?

WHY all these clandestine operations???

Could it be that there is some kind of 'Conspiracy Theory' involved here?

Let me answer straight:

What we are talking about here, is absolutely NO conspiracy theory...it is, in fact:

CONSPIRACY PRACTICE.

Why then would this particular infection lend itself so much to 'conspiracy practice'?

The shortest answer is:

DECEPTION.

Any kind of 'conspiracy' is obviously based on deception.

Any kind of tool that serves the practice of deception would therefore be welcome, wouldn't it.

Any kind of infection, which is able to sneak into our bodies, UNNOTICED by our immune system, would be first choice for any kind of 'conspiracy' medicine...wouldn't it???

As early as in 1944 Barclay Newman specified absolutely clearly, why the Borrelia would be so difficult to diagnose, almost impossible to treat, so sneaky and so dangerous:

Due to the simple fact that the –altered!- Borrelia do NOT have a cell-wall, they are:

- invisible for our immune system, which needs the cell-wall antigens to develop a proper response'
- NOT susceptible to antibiotics, for the main mechanism of antibiotics takes place at the cell-wall
- able to change their forms(the smallest almost as small as a virus and, like a virus able to invade our body cells)
- able to replicate by mere splitting
- and last not least:

They are carriers of deceptive information!!!

Let us leave the biological aspects aside for now. This is certainly worth another article.

Let us concentrate on the aspect of DECEPTION.

Every part of our universe is a carrier of a certain, unique information.

Since Einstein we have gotten familiar with the idea that we are as much matter as we are waves.

Every wave is a carrier of information.

The principle of the medicinal use of mere information is the underlying idea of Homoeopathy, this beautiful German method, which was created by another of my heroes, Dr. Samuel Hahnemann. Hahnemann knew that he was way ahead of his times.

Would he have been able to imagine that his method still is way ahead...100 years after Einstein?

So, let us just assume that Albert Einstein received the Nobel Prize for physics righteously – even though so many of us, who have never studied any physics tend to have extremely strong personal opinions on ...'all these matters'.

If, supposedly, Einstein was right...wouldn't then every stone have its 'inborn' information, every plant, every... Borrelia?

In fact, that's what it is:

Every germ, virus, bacterium, parasite, fungus...they all have their own 'inborn' and acquired information. This information can be simple or pretty complex. In any case it will serve...the survival and replication of its race.

It seems to be a pretty logical conclusion that...possibly... a certain germ could almost 'command' its host organism...with its information?

Let me give you a simple example:

If you are preparing a dough in your kitchen with yeast and flour...the starter dough will grow incredibly much quicker, if you add a bit of sugar.

It would grow with flour alone, but much slower.

Your dough's yeast is almost winging for a bit of sugar-but it remains dependant on your YES or NO.

Many of us know that people with a yeast infection tend to have a craving for... sugar...

For this reason sugar has been banned from many tables all over the first world. Unfortunately, it's the other way round: it's the yeast, not the sugar, which would need to be addressed in the first place...

If we look a bit closer into this –pretty common!- sugar/yeast problem, we might understand that the yeast, once in a living system, is not as helplessly dependant on our conscious decisions any more. Different to the miserable life the dough bowl, it can now, as a part of our system, predominantly our bowels, take over the command.

It asks for sugar...and we perceive the yeast's craving as our own!

I am fully aware that this concept is new to most people, 'alternative' health practitioners absolutely included. That's why I am writing the article☺!

Some 15 years ago this was a mere hypothesis of mine, deducted from lifelong observations in my meanwhile 40 years of intensive work in various medical fields.

In the beginning I only had this vague idea..."what if"?

Meanwhile I am sure that this is a valid concept.

Another remark, before we go back to the Borrelia:

Many of you will be aware that there is some kind of debate all around vaccinations.

This debate began in the homoeopathic communities some decades ago. The homoeopaths have not yet been able to give a solid reason for their abstinence to vaccinations but many of them are good observers...and they work with...the idea of information.

It would certainly deviate to go further into the pros and cons of vaccinations here-this can be done another time. Right now I just want you to get this idea:

"If a vaccination is the carrier of bodily information, wouldn't it be able to carry along the psychological information of a disease, the inner commands of the germs?"

And if this was so...

Would this aspect be known to the public? Would it be even known to the scientists behind it?

WHAT would then be the inner commands...of measles, influenza, meningitis?

To be clear here: I am not as such against vaccinations.

They can be helpful!!! But this 'help' comes at a price.

Do we know that price???

Do we actually know the prize of the meanwhile worldwide infestation with Borrelia?

Millions of people are disabled, depressed, dis-orientated, or simply very, very ill due to Lyme.

As we all know, official figures are hard to come by.

My personal impression after 15years of intensive work in the field of chronic illness:

50-60% of the first world patients, who are chronically ill, carry the Borrelia at least as a co-factor to their dis-ease.

From Alzheimer's to Heart Attack, from Headaches to Multiple Sklerosis...

Even though the Nervous System is much favoured by the Borrelia with diseases like AHDS, MS, Poly-

Neuropathia, ANY organ system can be targeted, depending on the host's condition and their weakest spots.

If this was so... why then would the Medical Authorities turn a blind eye to Lyme?

Why would one of the richest countries in the world, Australia, even deny the dis-ease totally???

Why would Australia need a Senate inquiry for the treatment of a very harmful infectious disease?

Why does the Australian public not know about this infection and its prize???

You might be able to guess my answer:

DECEPTION.

The leading 'inborn' information of the Borrelia is DECEPTION.

Not only do they physically come in disguise, as mentioned above. They also make the host think of anything else but...Borrelia. They are-in the manmade form-even as intelligent to feed the host with information that keeps them away from seeking help where it could be found.

In fact, the leading information of the Borrelia is:

"Borreliosis does not exist!"

It would be a conclusion of logic to postulate that:

"The more a medically full trained person carries on denying the mere existence of Lyme, the more this very person is suspect of carrying the Lyme disease themselves!"

This is a game of logic at this stage.

NO proof YET.

But wouldn't that explain the collective and fierce denial of Lyme by the Australian Medical authorities?

DECEPTION.

DECEPTION is the Devil's main tool.

We are living 'Modern Times'. Many of us have lost the notion of what is GOOD or EVIL, God or Devil... Common sense seems to be one of the most old-fashioned concepts of our times.

Most particularly in Medicine there is almost no common sense left.

Over the attempt to command and overpower nature we have lost the bigger picture.

We are constantly missing the forest for the trees.

There are many important single aspects to the diagnosis and treatment of Lyme dis-ease, of course.

I deliberately leave them out of this article- for the bigger picture.

In times, when we fly to the moon, we are certainly able to diagnose and treat an infection.

I have done it many times and it is not particularly difficult.

The most difficult aspect in Lyme is...DECEPTION.

It is not all that easy to treat somebody, whose vision is blurred by the problem itself.

It might even be harder to establish medical pathways in a country, who's Medical Authorities themselves, are blindfolded by the deceptive information of the Borrelia...

The Devil's mirror has done its job.

The vision of many is impaired.

The hearts of too many are cold.

Borrelia a man-made form of SPIROCHAETE,are, no doubt, the parts of Andersen's Devil's Mirror.

BUT there is a good ending even to the Snow Queen , and it goes:

"And they lived happily ever after....."
