

To Whom It May Concern:

I'd like to express my strong support for the Government to improve men's health in Australia.

I'd also like to recommend

- All schools to implement unbiased Shared Parenting Policies and Procedures and to implement programmes that deliver year 10 through 12 key principals around parenting and families.
- Greater participation of men in men's services delivery
- Increased participation of men in education and schools
- More male friendly emphasis not just pro feminist programmes & ideology
- Medical services delivery to reach men in the work place
- Access for Dads to their children's medical and educational information
- Promote and fund mens groups, mens socialisation and support through groups formed at local community level
- Men's drop in centres
- Accommodation and shelters
- Increased access to legal aid for men less barriers to receiving funds when faced with family law costs and child support impost whilst still paying existing mortgages
- Male counsellors for men. New services and new organisations not derivative of existing organisations of which many promote a feminist outlook and model for men, which is antagonistic toward men and mens roles.
- Dads and kids camps and family recreation involving fathers with their children
- Preparation for marriage: Engagement and Marriage enrichment programmes.
- Support for parents as the primary educators of their children includes more support for home schooling should parents desire it

Kind regards

Brad
