

Dear Sir/Madam

I am opposed to nuclear power in Australia.

Nuclear power is expensive to establish. It would be too slow to get off the ground, certainly not in time to deal with the gas crisis.

Most importantly, it is too risky in case of accidents or natural disasters, of which we have many in Australia. We would need to store the waste, and that is going to be unpopular anywhere in Australia.

We have plenty of cheap renewable options in Australia. We should be developing these.

Nuclear power is a terrible idea.

Yours sincerely

Marie-Louise Drew
