

To Who it may Concern:

I am one of the millions applicants for Australia Permanent Residence Visa. It has been 14 month, since I hand in my applications. I was hoping my PR Visa will get granted very soon, however, after I saw the TV interview of Senator Chris Evans. I felt extremely worried, confused, and a little bit horrified.

The reason of my entry to Australia is simply because of my passion in tourism industry, and I strongly believe Australia manages very successful tourism all over the country. While I was studying here, this belief becomes even stronger. As a result, I planed to stay here, getting the opportunities to actually work in the most leading tourism country in the world.

I made all my way to Australia for better study and better career with my passion and dreams, I've got the good grades in Universities, passed through all the requirements needed for the Permanent Residence applications. And even though, the long waiting for the PR Approval is not easy for me, as almost all the Australian tourism sectors require PR or Citizenship only when they recruit new staff member. I still kept my faith, hoping and wishing, someday, not too long, I will get my PR to apply for the job I really want and really good at.

However, after I heard the news of the interview regarding the Bill regarding Immigration Policy Changes. I felt devastated, if the new Bill has been proved, it means most likely that all my hard work has gone in vain, all the time I've waste while waiting is worthless, all the effort I've done so far means nothing any more. If there will be a meaningless ending for us, why giving hope at the beginning. And in other words, If a promise has been given to people, it has to be achieved without any compromises, because that is just simply the right thing to do.

Right now, I am still holding my faith, and sincerely hoping the Parliament of Australia will help me to make my dreams true.

Regards